Brain Gain Ireland is a network of professional and business people who have migrated to Ireland. Since the mid- 1990's the migrant population has accounted to over 10% of the Irish population (2006 census). During the Celtic Tiger period private business and the Irish Government travelled the world to interest professionals to relocate to meet the labour market demands in all areas.

With the recession, property crisis and unemployment at an all time high today, we see different faces of both indigenes and migrants in Ireland

Objectives:

- i. To create a networking opportunity for professionals and business migrants living in Ireland
- ii. To share, explore and highlight the 'gains', contributions and positive outlook in this dire time of recession in Irish history.
