Single Parents Acting for the Rights of our Kids

S.P.A.R.K. is a diverse group of single parents living in Ireland who have united together to protect our children from the radical policy changes introduced in Budget 2012.

We are here to raise awareness of the many challenges one-parent families currently face and to identify the essential support needed to allow us equal participation in society.

We assert the rights of our children to be treated equally and demand acknowledgement and recognition of our family status.

We actively challenge stereotyping of our families.

We oppose any economic, social, legal or political policies that have a detrimental effect on our children or on us as single parents. We seek equality for children regardless of their family circumstances.
